Committee Files Report on Cost of Improvement

Broadway Extension To Be Started Soon

With the filing of the report of the committee appointed several months ago to form an assessment district for the extension of Broadway, that important improvement was brought one step nearer completion. The report of the committee, consisting of L. A. Heiner, E. B. Fox and Walter T. Kellogg, was filed with the board of trustees Monday evening. It occupies 105 pages and is very complete.

The report indicates that the cost of the improvement will be $65,000 instead of $90,000 as originally contemplated. Of this amount $30,000 is already available as the result of a bond election in which this amount in bonds was voted last year. The remainder of the amount needed will be raised by an assessment district arranged in zones according to the benefit from the improvement.

The extension of Broadway is one of the important advances to be made by this city during this year, and actual work on the project has been awaited with expectancy by those who believe that this will mean much to the development of the city. Actual work on the project is now expected to begin within the next sixty days.

BEHIND THE TIMES

WORK STARTED ON NEW THEATRE HERE

Carpenters Begin Work on New $100,000 Building of Sequoia Theatre

Work was started yesterday on the building, which when completed, will be occupied by the Sequoia Theatre, and which will occupy the site until recently covered by the Central School. The work was begun yesterday by workmen of G. B Pasquelletti, San Francisco contractor who has the contract for the erection of the building.

M. E. Ryan of this city has the contract for the extensive electric installation which will be necessary for the building.

The building was planned by Reid Bros., an architectural firm of San Francisco and the plans were recently filed with I. C. Drathman, Redwood City building inspector. The plans are for a re-enforced concrete theatre building of the latest design in which all the most modern developments of show house construction have been considered. Prior to having the plans for this house drawn, Ellis J. Arkush, president of the Arkush Entertainment Co., which will lease the building, spent several months in Europe studying theatres there with a view to bringing new ideas home for the Redwood City house.

The theatre will cost in the neighborhood of $100,000 and will have a seating capacity of 1500, when completed it will supercede the present Sequoia which has been occupied for the past 14 years by the Arkush Entertainment Co.

Deeds for the property on which the building is being erected were filed this week in the office of County Recorder T. C. Rice. Three deeds were filed: one from the board of school trustees to Hare Brewer & Clark, real estate brokers of Palo Alto; a grant deed from Hare, Brewer & Clark to the General Properties Co.; and a deed of trust from the latter company to American Securities Co.

The building will occupy a position in the middle of the block, facing Broadway. A large store space on one side has been leased to the Woolworth Co., which will conduct one of the well-known 5, 10 and 15 cent stores. Office space is provided in a second story.

The school which until the first of this year occupied the site was one of the best known buildings of Redwood City. Its tall clock tower was a landmark. The building was wrecked in January to make room for the modern buildings, and its place was taken by the McKinley school recently completed on Duane street.

Two important road projects in this county are to be started very shortly according to an announcement by the State Highway Commission. These are the extension of the Skyline road from its present termination at the La Honda road to Saratoga Gap in Santa Clara county; and the grading and surfacing of three miles of the Bay Shore road from Broadway station to Fifth avenue in San Mateo.

Both projects have been advertised for bids, the commission states, and bids for the work are to be opened on April 11. Work on both projects will start shortly thereafter.

Moss Beach Club Gets Stock Permit

J. M. Friedlander, commissioner of corporations, has granted permission for this stock to be sold.

Officers and directors of the association are as follows: Sebastiano Belli, president; Guiseppe Bazzano, secretary; Dan Bortolotti, Ottavio Torre and Lazzaro Zanelli, directors.

Better Lights Ordered For Upper Broadway

Property owners on Broadway between the highway and the railroad tracks have taken the initiative in the matter of securing better lighting for their block on Broadway. A contract has been entered into by the property owners with the Street Lighting and Equipment Co. for the erection of larger and more powerful electroliers.

The property owners were represented at the meeting of the board of trustees Monday evening by J. W. Smith, when they asked a permit for the installation of the better lights. The permit was granted by the board.

The electroliers to be removed has been presented to the school district by the property owners and will be used around the new McKinley school.

SAN FRANCISCO BRIDGE MEETS BIG OPPOSITION

Opponents to the proposed bridge across the bay from Rincon Point in San Francisco to Alameda, as planned by San Francisco, were busy yesterday before the house committee which has the matter of granting a permit for the bridge under consideration. The opposition to the bridge was headed by Admiral Chas. Hughs, who claimed that the proposed bridge would be a danger to the navigation of the bay in time of war as it might be sunk in the bay by being bombed and would result in bottling up the bay.

The committee appeared to favor the construction of a bridge at Hunters' Point or some point south of there. It is believed that the proposed bridge at Candlestick Point would meet with favorable action by the committee provided that an adverse decision is given on the bridge now before them.

A bridge which proposed to be built at Candlestick Point was refused a permit by the board of supervisors recently because of pleas put out by the board of supervisors of San Francisco that the granting of such a permit would impair the possibilities of San Francisco gaining favorable action at the hands of the federal authorities in Washington.

It is now reported that in the event of the San Francisco proposition being viewed unfavorably by the congressional committee that Attorney Mansfield, who represented the Candlestick Point interests before the board of supervisors, will again make application for a permit for a bridge in the northern part of this county. If the San Francisco permit is definitely refused by Washington, there will be far less opposition to the granting of a franchise for such a bridge than there was a few weeks ago when Mayor Rolph and many of the San Francisco supervisors came here in a body to work against the project.

TAINTED CLAMS FATAL TO FIVE POINTS MAN

Eating tainted clams proved fatal to W. G. Hider, 37 of this city early Tuesday morning, according to a verdict reported by a coroner's jury at the parlors of Layng & Tinney Wednesday. Hider ate some clams Monday evening and shortly afterwards was seized with severe pains.

Dr. Harper Peddicord was called and found the man suffering from a severe attack of poisoning and lapsing into unconsciousness. He summoned the fire department with its inhalator, and the firemen worked for about an hour but without avail.

Hider leaves a widow and four children and his mother. His father was killed on the highway a short time ago when struck by a car.

Kiwanians Hear Debate On Service Club Work

Whether or not the results of the various service clubs are sufficient to justify their existence was the subject for a debate at the weekly meeting of the Redwood City Kiwanis Club Wednesday. The affirmative, that the clubs do not justify their existence, was supported by B. E. Myers, while Sam Winkleblack upheld the negative end of the question.

Both men were able in their presentation of facts, the discussion resulted in many good suggestions made by both. Attorney Lee T. Ross acted as chairman of the meeting. Members of the Redwood City Exchange Club and several members of Kiwanis clubs in other towns were also present.

Big Tree to be Made a Scenic Spot

Crew Busy Clearing Around Big Redwood

A clearing was made this week around the base of the largest redwood tree in the county in order that it might be seen from the Skyline road near which it is situated. The redwood is one of the largest of its species in the state, according to Roscoe Wyatt, secretary of the San Mateo County Chambr of Commerce, who called the attention of the board of supervisors to the large tree some time ago, and who was responsible for having the clearing made.

Although the tree was near the Skyline road it was seldom seen because of the heavy undergrowth near the road. The tree is reported to be 55 feet in diameter.

It is proposed by the chamber of commerce to name the tree from suggestions mailed to the office of the chamber of commerce. It is proposed to erect signs on the Skyline road calling attention to the big tree. The tree stands upon the land of the Bear Gulch Water Co., which is cooperating with the county in making it one of the scenic points of the county.

Big Still Seized At Halfmoon Bay

What is reported to be the largest still ever discovered by prohibition agents in this county was seized near Halfmoon Bay this week by federal agents. The still was just been completed and had not yet been put into service. The agents also arrested Joe Orti, who is alleged to have been in charge of the distillery and seized 36,000 gallons of mash and 6,300 pounds of sugar which was on hand ready to be transformed in to liquor.

A band of federal officers lead by W. R. Paget discovered the still just as it was being fired for the first time.

Atherton Wins in Ordinance Battle

That the town of Atherton was acting within the law in refusing permits to Joseph Shearer and Edward White for making alterations on two houses recently moved onto property owned by White and Shearer was the opinion handed down today by Judge George H. Buck.

The Atherton town council passed an ordinance some time ago that not more than one residence may be erected on an acre of land. The moving of the two houses by White and Shearer onto their property, the board claimed, was a violation of the building ordinance and Building Inspector Weeden refused to issue a permit for the buildings. The matter was taken to the superior court to test the validity of the Atherton building ordinance. Judge Buck's decision is a confirmation of the ordinance as it exists.

Ernest Werder, county purchasing agent of this county and a past president of the state association of county and municipal purchasing agents, was named chairman of the executive board of the association at the convention held at the Hotel Whitcomb last week.

Hoover Leads as G. O. P. Favorite

THROUGHOUT the country the sentiment is crystallizing in favor of Herbert Hoover for President, so much so, that it would not be surprising if the popular secretary of commerce would receive the republican nomination at Kansas City on the first ballot.

It is believed that Hoover will secure most of the delegates from Ohio and Indiana, where there is a fierce battle being waged by favorite son candidates against him. His opponents in those states are using unfair means to defeat him and are starting propanganda that ill becomes a fair and just opponent.

Every Republican voter in California should register for the May primary so that Hoover can secure an overwhelming vote, a vote of confidence that will show how the commerce secretary is thought of in his own state. This big recognition would stimulate his support in other states, particularly those commonwealths that will have an unpledged delegation.

Hoover has a wonderful record of achievements and accomplishments that is certain to secure for him the nomination at Kansas City next June.

The people of the state of California can assist their favorite son by registering and voting for him in May. All republicans are urged to register at once and roll up a vote next May that will be substantial, overwhelming and serve as a notice to eastern republicans that the party in California is unanimously behind the candidacy of Herbert Hoover.

Misusing the Law

THE siren has been adopted by police and fire departments as the official signal for an emergency demanding the right of way, and the state law demands that upon hearing this signal that all traffic draw to the side of the road and halt. This is a precautionary measure and an important one.

Now come the supervisors of San Francisco to make a call upon the supervisors of this county. They come down the highway at a high rate of speed, preceeded by a corps of San Francisco traffic officers with sirens sounding. Naturally they have the right of way as all other traffic draws off to the side of the road as they pass. Very nice for the San Francisco supervisors.

But was the visit of the San Francisco board to this county a life and death matter? It might have been for San Francisco's pet bridge project, but certainly not for the people of San Mateo county who happened to be on the highway as the siren-sounding cavalcade made its way in state along our county's roads.

In this county the supervisors of San Francisco should remember that they are common folks, no matter what they may lead the people of San Francisco to think. If they must travel faster than the laws provide, they should do so at the risk of being "pinched," even as you or I.

The use of sirens in the manner in which they were used on this occasion breeds a contempt for the law and, the citizen who was screeched off the highway on that day will wonder next time he hears the official signal of emergency whether he is being signaled to make way for a fire engine, an ambulance, or is merely being crowded out of the way of some of San Francisco's "big guns."

Protecting Our Dumb Friends

THOSE who have watched a dog riding on the running board of a car, standing with every muscle tense and strained in its efforts to ramain in place as the car swerves and bumps along the road, can appreciate an ordinance in effect in Los Angeles county prohibiting the practice of making animals ride anywhere except within a car, unless a framework is built for them on the running board.

Dogs love to ride; will undergo even great suffering to do so. But it is cruel to make them do so. A dog has no hands—cannot hold on as a human could, yet even for a man to ride long distances hanging on to the side of a car would be painful.

If the motorist thinks enough of his dog to let him ride on the car, he should at least let him ride in comfort, not stand in the wind and dust, strained and in danger every second of being thrown off the car by a sudden turn or jolt.

Law Enforcement, Not More Laws

IN considering a remedy for crime, the following statement constitutes the keynote of the report made by the subcommittee of the National Crime Commission:

"There is now a tendency to insist upon harsher punishment as a cure-all for all crime, whereas of far more importance, it will be found, is the building up of police and court management capable of catching and convicting a far larger percentage of the individuals who commit crime."

Law enforcement is the real answer to crime prevention. Arrests for robbery in England, Wales and Canada average 84 per cent. In the United States, Cleveland and Baltimore top the lost with 49 per cent and 47 per cent respectively, while other cities dwindle down to as low as three per cent. The ratio of convictions to known crimes of robbery and the ratio of convictions to the number of arrests made, run as strongly in favor of England as do the first figures mentioned, and make as unfavorable a showing for the United States.

Such figures tell a striking story and show that there must be, first, efficient police and, second, elimination of loopholes in legal procedure to promote the escape of the malefactor.

Commenting on the situation, the Portland Oregonian says the crime situation has reached a point in many of our cities where the luckless lawbreaker who is occasionally caught and convicted actually attributes his misfortune to an act of God, as he would in case of a disastrous storm, shipwreck or earthquake.

Trade Hinted in State Race

Political Prognasticator Sees Republican Split

By ESTO BROUGHTON

SACRAMENTO, March 21 — Politics may be considered a game by some, but it certainly is a trade.

And the latest trade, to be hinted at, is that between Mayor James Rolph of San Francisco and Senator Hiram Johnson.

The smoke of gossip had hardly ly cleared away about the trade between Hiram Johnson forces and the Hooverites, in which progressives were rumored pledged to let Herbert Hoover be California's only Republican candidate for president in return for the old guard line-up for the re-election of Hiram Johnson, United States senator, when the Rolph-Johnson entente was sprung.

Southern California is busy paging a candidate to put in the field against Johnson, who threatens to be washed up into the upper house of Congress, without opposition, on the popular flood of his Boulder Canyon Dam bill.

And in the course of beating the bushes for a possible winner, the northern city's perennial mayor has been favorably considered.

Rolph admits it in the following words: "Well. I've been promised all sorts of backing if I would run against Johnson. But the senatorship does not attract men."

But every man has his political Mecca, and Rolph's face has been turned toward the gubernatorial chair ever since he was shunted out of it by a political accident in 1918, when he received more votes than the winner. Rolph then polled 221,945 votes or 7,861 more than the successful candidate, former Governor William D. Stephens, however secured the Republican nomination, because he received more votes on that ticket, while Rolph failing to receive his own party nomination, although he had won it on the face of the returns.

Now Rolph lets the political cat out of the bag as to where his political aspirations really point in the following statement, and also reveals a probable gentleman's agreement:

"What interests me is where Senator Johnson would stand in the next governorship campaign if I refuse to run against him this year."

By a process of elimination that leaves Lieutenant Governor Buron Fitts and former Governor Friend W. Richardson as potential candidates against Hiram Johnson.

And Fitts is tentatively out of the race because of his active participation in the Hoover presidential campaign. He is not only a delegate to the Republican National Convention at Kansas City, but he is an active worker with the Hoover California organization. In reply to queries he confessed, "Somebody ought to run against Johnson, and suggested, "Rolph is a likely candidate." For himself, Fitts insisted that he was not thinking of running.

That leaves Richardson as the most probable opponent of the senior senator, and the stormy exgovernor is ready and willing to enter the battle at the polls, it appears.

In a declaration, which practically amounted to a declaration of his candidacy, Richarlson posted his ultimatum on the political calendar. "Either Buron Fitts runs or I run."

Richardson, in a letter to John A. McGilvray, political friend and associate and former head of the State Department of Industrial Relations, announced:

"A determined draft is being made upon me from friends in various parts of the state to run for senator.

"I prefer not to run, but may be forced in if Fitts does not announce soon."

Following the May presidential primary, the truce within the Republican party will be broken, according to political prophets, and we will again see progressives and re-actionaries pitted against each other in the August Primary. At present, Hiram oJhnson has the edge on it for the senatorial toga, but forces are aligning which indicate he will face a brisk ballot skirmish.

Emergency Action Asked in Bark-Borer Fight in Modoc County

By Capitol News Bureau

SACRAMENTO, March 22, — Alarmed by the destruction of approximately one billion feet of timber by insects in California last year, and the destruction of more than $2,000,000 worth of timber in Modoc county alone, the Modoc County Development Board is petitioning Congress to take drastic measures to stamp out the barkbeetles.

State Forester M. B. Pratt pointed out that insects destroyed over half as much lumber as was cut last year.

Congress is asked by the Modoc Board for an appropriation of $250,000 to finance a beetle eradication campaign in the pine timber belt, and to sanction the immediate salvation of mature timber now threatened by the pine beetle by the inauguration of logging operations in the Modoc National Forest.

The Modoc Development Association plans to send a delegate to Washington to press the demand for emergency action.

Prison Bag Price May Be Boosted

By Capitol News Bureau

SACRAMENTO, March 22, — What price grain sacks? It appears to be going up in 1928 as a result of the rumored decision of the San Quentin prison authorities not to offer their 2,000,000 annual jute bag output before August 1, when the harvests are practically over.

Last year the price was low owing to the new Bernard law requiring the sale of prison-made bags at a price of cost plus one cent. They sold then at 10 cents, which was two cents under the market price of Calcuttas, resulting in a saving to the farmers of more than $50,000.

The San Joaquin County Farm Bureau is reported to be investigating the reported withholding of bags from sale.

MANY REASONS WHY YOU SHOULD TRY CHIROPRACTIC

When one certain measure fails to bring desired results, every thinking person naturally turns to something else. This holds true in everything in life.

If your pen fails to write, you select another. If your merchant hasn't in stock what you want, you go to one who has. If your home is too small, you seek larger quarters. If one remedy fails to give relief in sickness you try another.

The failure of one thing to bring satisfying results constitutes a real reason for the trial of another.

In the past few years there have been thousands of cases cured by CHIROPRACTIC, where medicine has been given a timely trial and proved an absolute failure—therefore there are thousands of reasons why you should try CHIROPRACTIC.

These reasons are not theoretical—they are practical. They are not abstract principals — they are concrete facts They are not advanced by CHIROPRACTORS, they are given by medical doctors.

In studying many medical books written by the best medical authorities, you will find opposite the names of hundreds of diseases one or more quotations to the eflect that little or nothing can be done for them by medicine.

Are you suffering from any of these? Then try CHIROPRACTIC, for medicine is confessedly a failure in all of them. And the reason is not far to seek. In every one of these diseases relief can come only upon removal of the cause of the disorder.

This is exactly why CHIROPRACTIC succeeds—because it removes the cause, which is deficient nerve supply of the affected parts.

Sequoia Swimming Stars Show Swiftness

Swimming a comparitively new sport at Sequoia Union High School, has been developed rapidly and under the coaching of Ira Eva, former Stanford star, the boys who are on the teams have been practicing hard and have broken several P. A. L. records in practice.

Dick Harrington was elected captain of the light weights and Ted Terry was chosen to lead the unlimiteds. Both of these boys are fast swimmers.

James Clyne, Carl Cline, Boyd Canfield, Thomas Mullen and Orrin Stokes have shown the real stuff in the lightweights, while Cory Dudley, Joe Prein, Ted Terry, and Morton Biver have been churning the foam daily in the heavys.

The teams have competed in two meets thus far and have one lost the San Jose and lost the other to Palo Alto.

However, this is not to be a discouragement for it is still early in the season and maybe the boys will surprise before the season is over.

Sequoia Holds Second Place in Debating

On April 19 the two Sequoia debating teams, composed of Arthur Moritz and Louis Dematteis, affirmative and Anchor Nelsen and Edwin Brook, negative, will debate on the subject: "Resolved: That the Practice of Installment Buying is Detrimental to the American Public." The opponents have not yet been decided upon.

Sequoia holds second place in the Peninsula Debating League, with seven points, while Los Gatos is in the lead with eight. Sequoia expects to overcome that one-point advantage and win the championship, according to Arthur Moritz, president of the Sequoia Debating Society. A plaque will be awarded to the winning school and the school that wins the plaque three times will become the permanent owner of it.

The standing of all the schools in the League is as follows: Los Gatos, eight points; Sequoia, seven; Mountain View, five; Santa Cruz, four; Palo Alto, three; San Jose, one; and Santa Clara, none.

Seeks Withdrawal of Injunction Againts "Rainmaker" Hatfield

By Capitol News Bureau

SACRAMENTO, March 22, — Unless the state turns on the showers and gives California a good bath, the Young administration 'aint gonna 'reign' no more" after 1931, J. C. Bridgeman of San Jose notified G. H. Hecke, director of agriculture.

With the state needing a real drenching for the good of its agricultural soul, Bridgeman holds, it is up to Hecke to spend a few thousand dollars in securing the dissolution of an injunction obtained against Hatfield, the Rainmaker, in San Diego in 1915, forbidding him to spill any more moisture. The injunction was obtained when Hatfield pulled the wrong cord and washed out some 21 miles of railroad track, according to Bridgeman's memory.

San Francisco Bridge Before House Committee

The Interstate and Foreign Commerce committee of the house of representatives was busy yesterday and Wednesday hearing testimony in regard to San Francisco's proposed bridge from Rincon Point in San Francisco to Alameda. A delegation of engineers and supervisors from San Francisco is in Washington placing the matter before the committee. Accompanying the delegation are three supervisors from this county, Chairman Foole of the Third township, Mrs. Rosalie Brown and Manuel Francis of the Second and Fifth townships, respectively. City manager Clifton E. Hickok of Alameda also accompanied the delegation to urge the granting of a permit for the bridge.

Chris Cussen is representing the local Carpenters' Union at a convention of the State Building Trades Council being held at Petaluma.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Baughn are enjoying a motor trip to the San Joaquin valley and a visit with relatives at Visalia. They left here Wednesday.

Co-Operation Seen In Water Project

By CLEM WHITAKER

SACRAMENTO, March 22 — Sectionalism is on the toboggan in California and the "helping hand" policy, even between highly competitive districts, is rapidly becoming entrenched.

Nor is that mere Chamber of Commerce patter.

California communities, according to Assemblyman Bert Adams of Livingston, are giving practical, physical proof of their desire to pull together for the common good. They have learned that damage to one section hurts the entire state and, inversely, that development of one district brings greater prosperity to every other district.

In attempts to solve the state's marketing problems this new spirit is making itself felt, asserted the assemblyman. Santa Clara, San Benito, Sonoma and Napa—big prune counties—are sympathetic, for instance, in the struggle of the Sacramento Valley "peach bowl" to find new markets for peaches, for the prune belt has its marketing problem, too.

Similarly, the San Joaquin Valley raisin district has a quickened interest in the effort to increase the demand for prunes and peaches, while the citrus industry says a prayer for the raisin men, et cetera.

Incidentally, there is a growing feeling in the Capitol that before long all fruit growers, irrespective of their particular crop, will be united under a state supervised program to advertise all California horticultural products. Instead of separate advertising campaigns by the raisin men, the prune men, the citrus men and the peach men, there would be a continuous, coordinated drive to create a new demand and new markets for all fruits bearing the California label.

But the water problem, declared Assemblyman Adams, has really done more to knit the various sections of the state together than any other situation yet developed.

Adams, as a member of the joint legislative water investigation committee, has had opportunity to judge the attitude of the various counties on the highly important question of water distribution, which involves the taking of surplus waters from one valley into another valley to develop competing agricultural areas.

"And I am glad to say that the committee has found a fine spirit of co-operation, rather than the 'dog-in-the-manger' attitude that some expected," commented Adams.

"At our meetings in the Sacramento Valley we found the people ready and willing to yield their surplus supply for irrigation and development of the San Joaquin Valley. The Sacramento Valley, too, looks upon the San Joaquin Valley as its first competitor in point of attracting settlers.

"The sole restriction desired by the Sacramento Valley was assurance of an ample supply for future development within its own boundaries. The surplus water, a tremendous supply, they will gladly relinquish to the San Joaquin Valley, southern California, or any other area that needs its."

Support for the state coordinated water development program also has come from the Santa Clara and Sonoma valleys and other sections not faced with a pressing demand for water for their own purposes.

The joint legislative committee probably will go into southern California for a series of public hearings on the water problem during the latter part of April, Adams said.

LATEST DEVELOPMENTS IN AIRCRAFT TO BE SHOWN APR. 11-15

AIRCRAFT SHOW PLANNED FOR MILLS FIELD

Official announcement of completed plans for the first annual Western Aircraft Show, to be staged at Mills Field, San Francisco's municipal airport at Millbrae, April 11-15, was made this week by the Junior Chamber of Commerce of San Francisco, which is sponsoring the show.

There will be no charge or exhibit space and the public will be admitted free of charge to all the program events.

Committees of the Junior Chamber of commerce, headed by Porter Sesnon, chairman, have been working for several months on the pretentious program for the show, which is expected to outrank any aircraft exposition ever attempted in any part of the world.

The first annual Western Aircraft Show will commemorate aircraft's twenty - fifth anniversary and will depict the progress of aviation from the first flight of the original Wright brothers' plane in 1903 to the recent aerial accomplishments of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh.

Scores of manufacturers of airplanes, instruments, and accesories, have arranged for exhibit space, which is being assigned at Mills Field in the order in which applications are being received at the San Francisco Junior Chamber of Commerce, 451 California street.

The airport committee of the board of supervisors, headed by Supervisor Milo F. Kent, and including Supervisors Andrew J. Gallagher and Frank J. McGovern, has sanctioned the show and is actively co-operating in the plans. The show has also received the indorsement of the National Aeronautic Association, San Francisco chapter; Aeronautic branch, United States Department of Commerce; Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce of America, Inc., and the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce.

The purpose of the show is to promote development of air transportation and to incidentally advertise the efficiency of the Mills Field airport, which is recognized as "America's Model Municipal Airport."

The show program will include day and night aircraft exhibits and flights at Mills Field, airport conferences, an aviation ball at the Palace Hotel, band concerts, and the projection of the motion picture, "History of Aviation," showing the progress of aviation during the past twenty-five years.

WOODSIDE

Woodside hall will be transformed into a theater for the night of March 31st when the well-known theatrical troupe under the name of "The Hackett Players" will stage an evening of one-act plays for the benefit of the fire department. This will give our residents an opportunity for an unusual entertainment and will demonstrate just what kind of a theater town Woodside is.

Work was begun on Wednesday upon the extension of the Skyline boulevard southward from the La Honda road. A large crew is on the job and work is expected to progress rapidly during the summer months.

Mrs. P. D. Jarvis was taken suddenly ill on Saturday and was removed to the Mills Memorial hospital.

Tool houses have been built and grading has begun in preparation for the construction of two large homes on the Hammond property just north of the Mortimer Fleishacker place.

Mr. and Mrs. James O. Massay, daughter Coralie and son Oakley, who are visiting here from the Philippine Islands, were guests last week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Givens.

Development Shown On Television Screen

Members of the Amerianc Physical Society and the American Optical Society recently witnessed a demonstration of television, at the Bell Telephone laboratories, at New York City, during which important new developments were shown. These developments remove some of the obstacles which still separate the television art from commercial applications.

During the demonstration, there appeared on a large screen, before an audience of several hundred, the figure of Charles Bittinger, cartoonist of Boston, at work with his sketch pad. As he sketched rapidly, his motions and the pictures he drew were both clearly visible to the spectators.

The television screen upon which the figure of Bittinger appeared is a unique development and is designed for the displaying of television images before large audiences. It consists of a large grid-like electric discharge tube, through which the luminescence travels so rapidly that to the eye it appears to be brilliantly and steadily illuminated.

Another important development demonstrated was a new system of maintaining synchronization between the sending and receiving apparatus. The advantages of the new system, however, are not entirely in the refinement of synchronization, although this is very important. It also simplifies the original centering of the image within the viewing aperture. By the operation of two push buttons, the image can be caused to travel slowly across the field of view in either direction; and when it arrives at the desired position within the f release of the buttons automatically locks it in place.

When asked as to how development would affect progress of television, the engineers in charge stated the represented a step well in vance of anything heretofore complished. They added television, even on the ele basis conceivable, offers such plexities that its field of cation is as yet probably quite stricted.

Operators Save Many Lives

TELEPHONE RELIEF WORK FOLLOWS FLOOD PERIL

Two telephone operators, Carrie Johnson, at Fillmore, and Louise Gipe, at Santa Paula, were instrumental in saving hundreds of lives in the Santa Clara River Valley by their prompt, cool transmission of warnings to officials and others of the impending St. Francis dam disaster.

Other operators at other points in the valley also received and transmitted the warnings in the smaller communities and, though the girls did not know at what moment the flood would strike and sweep away the telephone offices, all stayed at their switchboards handling the terrific rush of urgent calls in spreading the general alarm.

Every town including and below Piru got first word of the coming disaster by telephone, before the water struck. As soon as the operators received the calls they notified the local constables and other peace officers, who spread the alarm with sirens whistles and bells.

Throwing the entire resources of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company, down to the last man and woman, into the job of rehabilitation, N. R. Powley, general manager, kept in personal touch with the situation and gave orders to spare nothing in preparing adequate communication.

More than half a million feet of temporary wire has already been laid to patch up the damaged lines and provide vital telephone and telegraph communication. All lines to San Francisco and other northern points were put back in service by 6 o'clock Tuesday evening; and work is being rushed on special facilities necessary to relief.

Two telephone men voluntarily dived into the raging torrent and swam to the other bank at dawn to start repair of the inland telephone lines, between Los Angeles and San Francisco, which were swept away from Castaic to Saugus. They are, E. B. Weidler, wire chief of Van Nuys and C. A. Rives, district superintendent of construction.

The first telephone line went down at 12:40 a. m. Tuesday and 45 minutes later the first repairman was at the scene near Saugus. By two o'clock in the morning, five trucks and fifty repairmen were on their way from Glendale, Pasadena and Burbank. During the remainder of the night ten more truckloads of temporary insulated wire were sent to the flood area. By noon 100 men were on the job. Meanwhile engineers of the telephone company were employing all their scientific knowledge to make the greatest use of every circuit strung across the flood area. As many as three and four conversations and a number of telegraph messages were sent over a single pair of wires.

At 9:05 Tuesday morning, the first pair of wires bridged the gap between Saugus and Castaic, and by six o'clock that night all of the inland telephone circuits, which carry a great part of the telephone and telegraph load from southern California to the north were restored by the use of temporary insulated wires laid on the ground and through the water.

Six hundred and fifty thousand feet of temporary wire was hauled to the scene in less than twelve hours after the break. Three hundred thousand feet of this wire were placed before six in the evening; two hundred thousand more feet were strung over a stretch of twenty miles down the Santa Clara Valley, to re-establish connections between Piru and points to the east.

More than 125 tlephone men worked straight through, without rest, until adequate communication was restored to carry on relief work. Special telegraph circuits were installed to take care of the Red Cross, newspapers, news agencies and Governor Young and his party at Santa Paula.

The Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company is rendering every assistance possible to the Santa Paula Home Telephone Company, which is being made headquarters for much of the relief work.

New Reduced Rates Reviewed at Conference

Electric Men Return From Rate Conference

W. T. Kellogg and C. D. Monteith of the Pacific Gas and Electric Company have just returned from San Francisco where they have been attending a convention of all division, district managers, sales managers and executives of the company.

The conference was called for a review of the new reduced rate schedules put into effect March 1, and a complete study and explanation of the rate to go into effect on April 1.

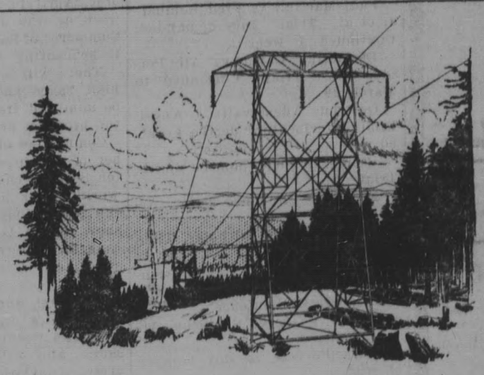
The meetings were presided over by R. E. Fisher, vice-president in charge of public relations and sales, who reported that the company's sales program is now practically 100% complete with some 300 new men recently employed in sales activities. The sales program outlined for 1928 will be one of the most extensive in the company's history. The continued growth of the territory and the increasing demands for gas and electric service with an aggressive sales program, according to R. E. Fisher, will result in a satisfactory return of business at the end of the year. The savings to consumers through the reduction in the electric rates, Fisher believes, will be a stimulus for a greater use of electricity through the purchase of new electrical equipment by the people in the territory affected. The company's program provides for full cooperation with the dealers through an aggressive leadership in the sale of quality gas and electric merchandise to stimulate an interest in the better type of gas and electric consuming devices.

The morning session on Friday was a joint meeting between the electrogists and representativs of the company and was presided over by C. T. Hutchinson, editor of Electrical West. At gathering Cy Geisbush, manager of the Electragists, outlined the aims and policies of that organization in its sales endeavors, whereby a wide-spread co-operative movement between the dealers and the power company will bring about a further understanding and complete unification of effort in presenting the matter of reduced rates and the use of modern electrical equipment to the consuming public.

At the luncheon held on Thursday, A. F. Hockenbeamer, president of the Pacific Gas and Electric Company, addressed the delegates present at which time he spoke on the rate reductions and said: "The company's object in reducing its rates is primarily to encourage a greater use of electricity, particularly greater use of electricity in the home. Applied to the volume of business anticipated for 1928, the reduction in revenue will amount to $1,750,000, but we are hopeful that a portion of this loss will be off-set by increased usage, and that eventually domestic uses of electricity will so increase as to entirely off-set the reduction in revenues. With the reduction now being made, our electric rates will be substantially below the pre-war level of 1914, despite the fact that the general average of commodity prices is still very much in excess of that level.

—oOo—

Pacific Gas & Electric Co. will spend $22.5000,000 on 1928 construction.



Reduced Rates

Invite greater use of electricity

It is now possible for customers to make greater use of electricity for better lighting, heating, cooking, and the operation of modern electric labor saving appliances.

Heating and cooking by electricity at rates as low as 1½ cents makes it more attractive for those customers not now using this clean, quick, convenient fuel.

New rates benefit large and small users

In addition to providing a material reduction in the minimum monthly cost to those who use very little, the schedules also provide new and much lower rates for the energy consumed.

The effect of the new rate on each consumer depends upon his use of the facilities available to furnish service. The more used, the lower the average rate.

Electricity is cheaper—you can use more of it

Our representatives will be pleased to explain the new reduced schedules in detail.

The captain studied the papers again.

"Pulled a boner bringing that fool Hesser on board," he said softly. "What am I to do with him?"

"Sorry, but I had to bring him. I couldn't let him go. He had been snooping about, and I didn't know how much he had picked up."

"Why didn't you—" The captain's gentle voice trailed off suggestively.

"Two reasons, and both d—d good ones. We couldn't get rid of him in that cove. You ought to know that.—My God, I'll never forget poor Blakely, and how he kept coming in on every wave.—That cove, I tell you, is a trap. The tide gets nothing out, brings everything back.—Five times Blakely came in—the men cursing and praying—crossing themselves.—And at the last we had to keep him there in the shack till he rotted. I tell you, rotted. —Besides," he said, "that was my bargain with you. I told you in the beginning that I stuck at murder, and I still do. D—d if I'll kill them unless I have to."

"A good preacher was lost in you, Ronnie," the captain said affectionately. "You've got a conscience—or a weak stomach—same thing.—Why, what's one crook more or less in a world full of 'em?"

"Blakely was no more a crook than I am," Ronald muttered doggedly.

The captain laughed jovially. "Well, bless us, boy, what else are you?—Come, have more coffee.—You've got the blues." He touched the bell. The captain glanced at the list of names in his hand. "Bring Mr. Rivers," he said to the seaman who answered.

"There's a reward of three thousand for him, but he had plenty on him, so I said five."

One of the men from the Little club came in, his hat in his hand. The two officers nodded to him curtly, without offering him a chair. He laid his papers before the captain.

"John D. Rivers. London. Passports, visas, birth certificate, everything O. K.—Ninety dollars, Mr. Rivers. I understand you are going home on this old freighter because of the economy.—Sorry we can give you no better accommodations," he said suavely, "but we do not cater to passengers, really.—Fare, ninety dollars."

The man Rivers without a word counted out five thousand from his wallet, and laid it on the table.

Ingram handed him a receipt for the money.

One after another the men from the Little club were ushered into the captain's room, their papers examined with great attentiveness, their money taken—usually fat rolls of bills for which a form receipt was given in exchange.

When the last man had gone out the captain figured swiftly on the back of an envelope for a moment. Then, detaching a small amount from the heap in his open drawer, he counted out a portion of it, and put it in a section of the wall safe beside the desk.

"One thousand eight dollars for the good ship Roger Williams," he said. "Twelve stalwart passengers at ninety dollars a head."

The rest of the money he tucked quickly into a steel box, and touching a secret spring in his table, fitted the box within it, closed it again. "And for the brains and blood behind the Roger Williams—a wee mite more," he said laughingly.

They smoked for a moment in silence. The captain poured out fresh coffee. "The papers were good," the captain said in a tone of satisfaction. "He's getting better and better.—We may need to keep a friendly oversight on him. He's getting almost too good. —Well, let's turn in. I'm tired. You look like the face on the bar-room floor, Ronnie. Cheer up. Things are looking up to heaven. That takes care of everything, doesn't it?"

One instant they both paused, on the edges of their chairs, for a final pull at their cigarettes. And in that moment Gay wriggled out from beneath the bunk silently and took one firm but fearful step toward them.

"It—doesn't take care of—me," she stammered weakly.

CHAPTER XIII

"Gay Delane!" The exclamation was Ronald Ingram's.

Even in that terrible moment Gay was quick to observe the sinister change that came over the captain's face. His air from one of rich well being became portentous and greatly still. The soft brown eyes receded into themselves, became fathomlessly deep and dangerous. His lips showed a straight red line between the black of his mustache and beard. One quick appraising look he gave her, a look that swept her from leather boots to leather cap, and then he turned about in his chair and looked at Ronald Ingram.

His voice was a dangerous purr. "This, Mr. Ingram, is a flagrant infraction of rules, as you know very well. You have deliberately disobeyed the one order to which I have held every one around me in all of my various—sailings.—No women aboard is my rule—and no women aboard applies right now." There was a slight return to something of suavity beneath his anger as he turned to Gay.

"Madame, I am sorry. I can understand that a woman may have quite as good reasons as a man for wishing to sail without the fanfare of publicity. The ladies, madame, have my sympathy, but they do not sail on my ship." He bowed mockingly, the red lips curving into a derisive smile. "Sorry, very sorry, but law's law. The charm of your presence, the warmth of your beauty, the brightness of your eye, serve to strengthen me in my conviction that women play the devil on shipboard. Sorry. I have never had a woman aboard, and—"

"But—I am aboard," said Gay faintly.

"You are, yes. Worse luck to all of us. But you won't be—very long. Where are your papers?"

"Sir," interrupted Ronald Ingram quickly, "I beg your pardon, but—you do not understand. Miss—the lady is—not a fugitive. She is my —my fiancee.—We love each other—we—we could not bear to be separated—"

The captain's dark eyes were still boring into Gay's face, and in that instant Ronald was able to flash her a warning signal with his eyes. Quickly she realized that he wished to help her, and the warm gratitude in the look she gave him might easily have been misconstrued by one who thought she loved him.

The captain's eyes had not wavered from her face. "How much do you know of our—business ventures?" he demanded curtly.

And then, in hope forgetting to seek advice in Ronald's pleading eyes, she blundered into her great error. Her desire was to intimidate the captain, show him her power, make him respect her for her knowledge, and she cried triumphantly:

"Everything! I know everything.—Smuggling Chinese, forged passports —Yes, the murder of poor Blakely—everything!"

It was no less than murder that showed in the captain's black eyes then. His voice was a whisper, the whisper of a wild animal panting.

"So! Everything." His eyes turned slowly upon Ronald Ingram. And Gay, following his glance, seeing his fury, seeing Ronald's consternation at her revelation, realized the gravity of her mistake.

"Oh, no," she gasped. "Oh, no." The captain's eyes traveled slowly that deadly trail from Ronald's eyes to hers again.

"Yes?" he purred.

Gay pulled herself together. "He did not tell me," she disclaimed quickly. "He told me you were just independent shippers, running a tramp steamer wherever you could get a cargo."

"Who told you—everything—then? Not—Moy Sen?"

"Certainly not." But she gained confidence, strengthened by the firm timbre of her own voice. "But it was Moy Sen who first aroused my suspicions. I live in the cottage next to the clubhouse. Moy Sen watched me —and I caught him. That was curious.—And then I put things together. Why Ronald went away so suddenly, why he had purchased the clubhouse, how Blakely's body came into the cove— I put everything together and it was strange. So—I—just snooped."

A quick flash of amusement lightened the black fury of the captain's face. "Oh! You snooped!"

"Yes, I—I loved him, and I had to find out from the piazza floor and crawled under and peeked through the oilcloth over the window and—I saw everything."

"And knowing — everything — still you took a chance and came along?"

"I could not bear to—to let him go away—into such danger—alone. Besides—it is all your fault," she said accusingly, but there was no very convincing quality in the accusation. "You are older than he, you are magnetic, powerful. You led him into it."

The captain laughed softly at that, but frowned again in a moment.

"This is a devilish kettle of fish," he grumbled anxiously to Ronald. "Where are her papers?"

"She has no papers, sir. She only decided to come tonight."

"How do you expect to get her ashore—"

"She won't go ashore, sir. She is an American citizen, so am I. She will stay on board when we are in foreign ports. And when we come back we can land her at the island.—I couldn't come away—without her."

The captain lighted a cigarette, and bit the end of it thoughtfully. His mildness of manner had returned.

"I'm not blaming him, you understand, Miss—Miss—"

"Gay is my name, Gay Delane."

"Gay. That's nice. Like that. Call you Gay then, right off, since you'll sort of be my mate-in-law as you might say.—You'll have to keep in your cabin, out of sight of the men.—You understand how men are, miss, when they're at sea, no women, you know—goes to their heads—nice chaps our men, fine chaps—but the thought of a woman goes right to their heads."

"I—I wouldn't cause trouble for anything," Gay said quickly, and hope sprang into her heart again. "I am sorry I came. I see now how foolish it was. But things just—went to my head, too, I suspect.—Perhaps you'd better just put me off and send me ashore in a small boat."

"I'd like to," the captain said pleasantly, and a smile snowed in the dark mild eyes, "I'd like to first rate. But it's too late now. No, you'll have to stick it out with the Roger Williams this trip. Keep her in your cabin, Ronald, until— You'll have to be married! That's the dope. The men don't have much regard for women, but they show some respect to a wife."

Gay flashed a frightened, appealing look at Ronald. Married!

"The captain marry us," he stammered. "At sea. Captain's privilege. Yes, that would be—best." But he did not meet her eyes.

"Yes. And meantime, keep her in your cabin, and out of sight." The captain's eyes wandered to Gay again, warmly appraising, slowly approving. 'Maybe she'd better stay here. My cabin is safe enough, for woman, child or beast. I'll keep her for you."

"No. She'll be all right in my cabin.—She—she is very nervous; I—I must console her."

"I could console her," said the captain, smiling broadly.

Ronald answered with a straight defiant stare. He stepped quickly to the door and opened it, then, after a moment's pause while he waited for a seaman to pass through the corridor, he took Gay's hand.

The captain, smiling, gave her a friendly touch on the shoulder. "Don't be frightened, little girl," he said. "I'm going to take care of you. I am the captain here. Don't be frightened."

"Th—thanks," stammered Gay weakly, and then, hurried by Ronald who held her hand, she ran, a boyish slim figure beside him, down the corridor to the farther cabin, and the door closed behind them.

Safe in their retreat, Gay faced Ronald Ingram defiantly, chin sturdily upturned, hands in pockets, eyes stubborn. She was not afraid of Ronald Ingram.

"What—what in the—the name of—heaven and earth—" he began wildly, "what in the name—of heaven—"

"You said that once," she interrupted coldly. "Don't be silly." And then she wilted suddenly. "D-don't scold me. I—I—feel just—terrible. I —I know I'm going to cry." Then, remembering Rand, she stiffened, faced him furiously again, drove the quiver from her lips. "Where is he," she cried, "where is Randolph Wallace? What have you done with him?"

"Oh!" Ronald Ingram looked white and sick all at once. "Oh, the Cavalier!—So that's it. I might have known. Fool that I was, for a moment I believed it—I thought—I believed you really did come—because you loved me—" His voice broke, and his eyes were smartingly bright.

But Gay was heartless. She caught his arm, held it in wrenching, strong young fingers. "You tell me," she commanded. "If you have hurt—one hair of his head—"

"I haven't seen him, Gay. I don't know anything about him. What has he to do with—us?"

Gay wilted again, broke into soft painful sobs. "Rand, Rand," she whispered through tears.

"Don't cry. Don't. He—he's all right. D—n him. I don't know where he is, but he's all right. Nothing ever —only us poor—devils—who—get— Don't cry, Gay." He put his arm about her tenderly, but Gay wept passionately and would not be comforted.

"What the dickens did you tell him all that for?" he broke in at last impatiently. "Nice mess you've got yourself into. Why didn't you keep your mouth shut, as I gave you a sign? Why do women always have to blab everything they know?. You put yourself in his power by your own words. If he thought you were innocent, knew nothing, he would send you ashore. But now, knowing you have his life in your hands, you are his slave for life. You'll never get out of his sight as long as you live. He wouldn't dare let you go."

"I was afraid of it," she said faintly. "I knew I had made a mistake when I saw his eyes. I was very foolish. I was never—very wise," she admitted pathetically.

"No. But you are—very sweet," he said sadly.

"Help me, Ronald. Won't you help me? You said you—liked me. I only came because I thought—"

"You thought that chap—the Cavalier—"

"I thought you would kill him, so I came—"

"To intercede for him—to save him?"

"Alas, no, I had no hope. I thought you would let us die together."

"I will help you, Gay. It is putting my nose behind the bars to run the risk, but I will do what I can. We must think, we must plan it out. You must pretend to be in love with me—keep away from the captain—fear him more than the men. Gay, I am afraid he will insist that you marry me. I almost hope he will."

"Oh, no; oh, no."

"You could easily have it annulled Gay, don't be foolish—marriage would protect you—until you reach home. I would not—bother you. Gay, watch the captain. Do not think he would stick at murder? Don't you know that when a man is facing exposure, capture, death, he is mad——quite mad? Well, you mean those things to the captain, Gay, exposure, capture, death. He will keep you in his web like a spider. Remember Blakely—"

"Blakely," she said sadly. "Poor Blakely!"

"You stand where Blakely stood. Watch the captain, and do not cross him, or you'll lie where Blakely lies. Blakely got in a mess—with a woman, too—no wonder Garman rules the women out; we've lost three good men because of them. Well, Blakely tried to swing Garman in to clear himself. You saw the end of Blakely. I tell you, Gay, watch the captain, and do not cross him."

"But, Ronald, I can't marry you. I —I love— I can't marry you."

"Sh!" He signaled her into silence, his manner changed. "I know, dearest," he said clearly, "but don't cry. Don't be afraid of him. We were very wrong to do this, and put him in such a position, but he has promised to take care of you and he will keep his promise."

He indicated for her to take her cue.

"I—I am afraid, Ronald," she said faintly at first, but gaining courage as she spoke. "I—i wish I could go home. Oh, why did you let me come? Why didn't you warn me? He hates me, I know. He looked very fiercely at me. He is handsome, is he not? But I know he hates me."

A brisk tap at the door, and it opened. The captain entered, and, one of the bravest of men, not without his smirk of satisfaction. His eyes upon Gay were amorous.

Proof Positive

To avoid chartering a special car to ship 200 pounds of limburger cheese, a manufacturer packed it in a rough, oblong box and checked it as a corpse. At the first stop he went ahead to the baggage car to see that there was no trouble. He stood by the box in a disconsolate attitude and shaded his eyes with his hand. The baggage man was sympathetic. "A relative?" he asked.

"Yes, it's my brother."

"Well, you have one consolation. He's dead, all right."

FOR CHILDREN'S PARTY FROCKS; CAPE ENSEMBLES ARE CHARMING

THEY say "seeing is believing." Well, maybe it is, but have you strolled through any of the wash-goods displays and fashion shows staged by your "nearest dealers"? Here the seeing, believing rule fails completely, for with the materials spread before one's very eyes it is hard to believe that the sheer celanese voile is not really and truly a superfine silk georgette and that the flowered rayon is not a sure-enough and tape measures are an unknown quantity.

Ensemble, the word of infinite interpretation in the world of fashion! In the present vogue for the ensemble, stylists see opportunity knocking at the door of creative genius. The humblest dressmaker, the most renowned couturier, under the inspiration of the ensemble theme, are letting down the floodgates of imagination, releasing, thereby, a never-ending flow of "ideas" expressed in terms of choicest colorings and most intriguing fabric combinations.

LOVELY PARTY FROCK

To some fashionists the word ensemble conveys the thought of utilitarian sweater and tweed effects. Others translate the term by uniting cloth with gay silk print, the latter lining the coat as well as serving as the medium for the one-piece dress or blouse worn under it. Still others elect to combine jersey and dull-finished crepe satin in ways which challenges the admiration of everyone.

It is this idea of an alliance between jersey and satin which gave to one designer the inspiration to create the most charming ensemble shown in the picture. Not only is the combination of jersey and satin weave a very happy union, but its attractiveness is accented because of the fascinating color schemes it adopts. In the instance of the model illustrated the first quality silk print. No wonder that mothers who are considering these materials for their little folks' dresses persist in asking, "Do they wash?"

There is, per example, the exquisite seafoam green celanese voile, which was used for the making of the cunning party frock which the darling youngster is wearing in the picture. Yes, it tubs perfectly as a linen handkerchief, although it must be admitted the superior "looks" of this material baffles in that, to all appearances, it belies its laundering qualities.

A dress like the one in the picture can be made very readily even by the inexperienced seamstress. One can easily secure a similar pattern at almost any department store. It is a particularly charming style owing to its fashionable circular skirt, and the scalloped hemline adds greatly to its attractiveness. It adds to the poetry of the coloring of this little frock that tiny rosebuds are embroidered here and there.

A CAPE ENSEMBLE

Considering their inexpensiveness and their prettiness, several celanese voile dresses in various pastel tints should be included in every little girl's spring and summer wardrobe. Now is the time to make them ere fair weather, flowers and sunshine lure even the best-intentioned mothers out into the open where sewing machines and tape measures are taboo. The color selected was the very new and very smart oatmeal shade. The jersey of the cape and jumper underneath is accurately matched to the exquisite satin of the plaited skirt. Not only are ensembles such as the youthful one in the picture developed in soft grays, in beige and even in navy, but some of the very loveliest are carried out in pastel tones.

Indications increase daily that many frocks of lace for afternoon wear will be included in the dressmakers' spring collections. Beige lace is forecast as a first favorite with black next and dark blue third. Beige lace underwear is shown by several designers of importance.

Death Costly Affair Among the Blackfeet

Among curious customs observed by Indian tribes at the death of a member, the Blackfeet of the territory around the headwaters of the Missouri river had one of the most inexplicable. At the decease of a child the father went outside his lodge and placing earth upon his head wailed loudly. This vocal tolling of bells notified the tribesmen of the sad event and they would come rushing to the lodge to take possession of all the portable property therein they could find. The grief-stricken parents were stripped of all other worldly possessions, sometimes not even excepting their clothing. Relatives of the deceased child attested their grief by cutting off their fingers—the number of joints severed displaying the degree of their sorrow. Any relative who merely wept at the funeral was looked upon with disdain.—Detroit News.

Owns Underground Farm

One of the strangest farms in the world is the great subterranean acreage of Howard Bell of Crittenden, N. Y., on which he raises huge crops of mushrooms. Seeking means to cultivate the delicacy, which thrives without daylight, on a wholesale scale, Bell conceived the idea of using an abandoned cement mine. The results were even better than he anticipated.

Throughout the entire underground agricultural plant a temperature of from 47 to 51 degrees is maintained the year round, this being ideal for the product.—Popular Science Monthly.

Give Cows to Needy

To reduce the hazards of fellow settlers in the first few years of farming, Zoutpansberg (Africa) branch of the 1920 Settlers' Memorial association has evolved a plan whereby every member of the branch undertakes to give a good cow to any member experiencing difficulty in getting a start. A needy settler will thus receive 30 to 40 good cows with which he will be able to overcome his difficulties and begin anew.

Plan Stadium for Jennings

A MOVEMENT has been launched at Scranton, Pa., to erect a public stadium as a memorial to Hugh Jennings, former manager of the Detroit Tigers, assistant manager of the New York Giants and for more than thirty-five years a prominent figure in the big leagues.

The idea of a stadium in honor of Jennings and with the idea of perpetuating his memory was suggested by Prof. Francis Fitzgerald, connected with the faculty at St. Thomas college at Scranton, Pa. It has been proposed that the city set aside some money to get the stadium movement started and that the balance be raised by friends of Jennings throughout the country. It is proposed that on certain days of the coming season big league and minor league teams be asked to give a portion of their receipts to the Jennings memorial. Civic clubs and baseball fans in the Lackawanna valley will also be asked to join in the drive while good sized subscriptions will be asked from prominent Scranton residents, all friends of the former Tiger boss.

Hugh Jennings.

For several years there has been strong sentiment at Scranton for a public stadium that could provide for big football games, scholastic games, and professional baseball contests. On this account the Jennings memorial suggestion is believed to have a splendid chance of going through, it being expected that between the support of those realizing the need for a public stadium there and those wishing to keep the memory of the famous Detroit manager fresh, a sufficient amount will be forthcoming. At least $50,000 would be required to build the stadium. It is understood that for this figure a field with a seating capacity of 30,000 could be erected.

RAY TRYING FOR OLYMPIC GAMES

Famous Mile Runner Has Heart Set on Comeback.

The call of the 1928 Olympic games has beckoned Joie Ray, one of America's greatest mile-runners, back to the track to seek the laurels held by Lloyd Hahn, Boston runner, and Paavo Nurmi, the Olympic champion.

Every evening, as soon as he has finished his daily labors in the steel mills of Gary, Ind., Joie reports to his coach, Johnny Behr, of the Illinois Athletic club, for practice. For nearly ten years, from 1915 to 1923, Ray was supreme at the mile race among American runners. Then came the Nurmi invasion and the flying Finn raced Joie into defeat which led to Ray's temporary retirement.

Still under thirty years of age, Ray believes, and so does Behr, that there is a chance to catch the antelope of Abo, if they meet in the 1,500 and 5,000-meter races at the Amsterdam Olympic games this summer.

It is more than eight years since Ray, at about the peak of his form, set up A. A. U. records for the 1,000 yards and one mile which still stand. But only three years ago, he equaled the American performance of Nurmi in running a mile in 4 minutes 12 seconds. Nurmi, however, is credited with the world record of 4:10.6.

When Nurmi went back to Finland with about all the American marks shattered, Ray dropped out of competition and became a taxi-driver, as he needed a fresh-air job. He tired of this, so he went to the Gary steel mills, seeking a job which would add weight and muscle to his slight frame. He has been there ever since, and when indoor track training began this winter, Joie was back in harness.

A new process for preparing flax without retting is being exploited in Glasgow, Scotland, that is said to reduce the time to one-twelfth of that ordinarily required.

What Happens When Business Men Confer

This was a conference to end conferences. Gathered about the long table were 12 representative business men, 14 ash trays, 12 pencils, 48 cigars and one telephone.

The chairman briskly rapped for order. He stated the purpose of the meeting. He called for remarks.

Silence did not follow. Members A, B and C were engaged in small talk. Members D and E were playing over a Saturday golf game. Members F, G and H whispered, followed by prolonged laughter. Members I, J and K were calculating the effect of bridge on the human nervous system. Member L, alone, was brooding. No one, it seemed, had heard the chairman.

The telephone rang. The chairman was called. He listened attentively for a moment. His reply was decisive, stern: "Tell 'em I'm in conference!" —Kansas City Star.

Champion Tunney Orders Ring Equipment South

All the paraphernalia Gene Tunney used in preparing for his title defense against Jack Dempsey last fall was shipped to Miami, Fla., recently. Along with the shipment went Lou Fink, trainer of the heavyweight champion, to guard the 16-ounce training gloves, light and heavy punching bags and Tunney's ring equipment.

Fink hastened South at the call of the titleholder, who plans to start light conditioning immediately in prospect of two matches next summer. The taciturn trainer, who kept a wary eye on Gene's condition before almost all of his major battles, expects the champion to train in Florida four months. Sparring partners will be engaged within a few weeks.

If Tunney reaches an agreement with Tex Rickard for a fight in June, Fink believes the champion will complete training at Speculator, N. Y.

Herman Layne Is Bought by Indianapolis Indians

The outright purchase of Herman Layne, outfielder, from the Pittsburgh Pirates, is announced by James A. Perry, owner of the Indians. Layne played with the Tribe last season, being sent there on an optional agreement. He was recalled by the Pirates at the close of the season. With the Indians Layne batted .325 and his record included 25 doubles, ten triples and ten home runs.

The Indians now have five outfielders, the other four being Wid Matthews, Reb Russell, Walter Mueller and Walsh. Mueller was recently obtained from the Pirates. Walsh was bought from the Toronto club of the International league a year ago but did not report to the Tribe, being released on option for the 1927 season. Besides Mueller and Layne, Owner Perry purchased Emil Yde, pitcher and Roy Spencer, catcher, from the Pirates during the winter months.

20-Year-Old Twirler Is Given $10,000 per Year

Willis Hudlin, the sensational contribution of Wagoner, Okla., to the big leagues, expects to get more than $10,000 from the Cleveland Indians for his services during his second year in the majors.

The twenty-year-old pitcher was credited with winning more games than any other hurler on the roster of the Indians last year, his first in big-time company.

Although he returned the first contract sent to him, Hudlin anticipates no difficulty in coming to terms, he said.

Fullback Is Captain

George Rich, captain of the Michigan football team for next season, will share with the famous "Bottles" Thompson, 1912 captain, the distinction of being the only fullback to lead the Maize and Blue on the field of battle since Fielding H. Yost came to Michigan as coach in 1901. Two other fullbacks, "Pat" Smith in 1917 and "Tad" Weiman in 1918, also were elected captains, but neither saw active service, having enlisted for war duty.

Too Much Ukulele Costs Rookie's Job

Walter Shaner, weak first baseman, and one of the best hitters in the Eastern league, has been sent back to the minor leagues by the Red Sox because he has such a musical disposition.

Shaner, a big fellow, broke into the Eastern league in 1923 with Springfield while Patsy Donovan was manager. He acted like a toe dancer on nearly every throw he handled until Donovan could stand the strain no longer and put Walter into the far reaches of the outfield. But Shaner could hit. He went to Cleveland from Springfield and finally landed with the Red Sox. There he proved a ukulele expert and even brought his uke from the clubhouse to the bench. Bill Moore, catcher with a sweet voice, teamed up with Shaner. They entertained the other players as well as themselves, but in doing so hit a sour note in Bill Carrigan's make-up, and both have been shunted down to Mobile.

Four Big-League Clubs Bid for Bruce Caldwell

Bruce Caldwell, the Yale football hero, may develop into the much sought after college baseball player of the year before he hangs up his togs in June.

The Yankees, Griffmen, Giants and Robins, are very much interested in Caldwell, and it is said that the Yankees have Caldwell's word that he will let them have a priority claim on his services if he elects to play professional baseball.

Caldwell, however, has been careful not to do anything to injure his amateur standing and cause a recurrence of the incident which caused him to be barred from the Princeton and Harvard football games last fall. He was barred for having played two games with the Brown Freshmen in 1923.

The Yale star is a second baseman, modeled along the lines of Rogers Hornsby.

Gar Wood Accepts

Commodore Gar Wood of Detroit, holder of the British international trophy, has accepted the challenge of the British Royal Yacht club to defend his title this fall. By telephone from Miami, Fla., Wood expressed satisfaction that a challenge had been made and said he would guarantee the Y. A. A. and the Detroit Yacht club that he would be ready.

Andy Cohen Signs

Andy Cohen, young second baseman whom John McGraw considers the most likely successor to Rogers Hornsby, signed a contract with the New York Giants for 1928.

A Texas product, Cohen started with Buffalo last season in the International league where he was shipped by the Giants for further seasoning.

Lining up of Cohen gives Manager McGraw a complete infield under contract.

MENLO PARK

City Council in Session

All members of the city council were present at the regular meeting Tuesday evening.. The garbage ordinance was read by City Attorney Whitworth and was introduced after some discussion. it will be adopted at the next meeting of the board.

A letter was read from Mrs. E. Stenegord, representing the Parent-Teachers' Association. She asked that the road in front of the entrance of the grammar school building be repaired as it was a detriment to the pupils and public. It was referred to the Commissioner of Street Harcom. He said no improvements could be done at this time but thought some time in the future the highway would be widened from curb to curb. The members of the council thought the state highway commission might do the work of widening. It was finally agreed to refer the matter to the city attorney to determine who had jurisdiction over the highway in the city limits.

The matter of raising the water rates of the Bear Gulch Water Company was discussed by the council. The railroad commission will meet in Menlo Park to hear the application of the company for a raise of the rates on April 9. James T. O'Keefe addressed the council urging the members to oppose the proposition. The clerk was authorized to communicate with the Atherton council to co-operate in opposing the application.

Mr. Barron, representing the San Francisco Examiner, asked the council to approve of his advertising scheme. The paper is to issue a special edition devoted to the activities of the peninsula shortly. He wanted the council to sponsor the enterprise and that local advertisers would do the rest. The request was granted.

Harcom announced that he had put up the sign on Chestnut street and would install one on Encinal just as soon as he could communicate with Supervisor Poole, who is in Washington.

Councilman Harcom asked the clerk to notify the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company to remove the toll of five cents existing between Menlo Park and Redwood City. The clerk was so instructed. This is an age-old complaint. The people of Redwood city have been waging war against the company for years to remove the toll but without success. Years ago the company removed the rate but some time since put it back again.

The Southern Pacific Railroad Company is to be notified by the clerk to establish a wig-wag signal on Encinal avenue and to install a flagman on the crossing at Ravenswood avenue. The flagman there was removed some months ago by the company. It is a treacherous crossing and should have a flagman.

Harcom announced that the mayor, chief of police and himself were by invitation, to meet the superintendent of the road of the Southern Pacific Company during the week at the depot to discuss some matters pertaining to the Oak Grove street crossing. While in session with that official it was thought best to discuss the improvement of the square surrounding the depot.

Atherton Candidates

Mayor M. A. Harris and councilmen C. D. Walter and Charles Merrill are candidates for trustees of Atherton and should be elected unanimously. They are all men of outstanding business ability, honesty and integrity. It is refreshing to know that such busy men are willing to give their time and energy to civic affairs. It is a good omen when such citizens are willing to serve the people for the government is safe in their hands. Judge Jennings is a candidate for city clerk. He is a high-class attorney, a young man of ability and sterling integrity and an official of unquestioned honesty. The citizens of Atherton will make a mistake if they do not elect him.

Frank W. Johnson for Trustee

Frank W. Johnson is the only aspirant for trustee of the Menlo Park School District at the election next Friday. He is a splendid candidate. Come to the polls and vote for him. Also vote for Judge C. A. Shurtleff for trustee of the high school at the same time. The judge is an able and trustworthy man. He would be a credit to the high school board and to the district. Don't fail to cast your ballot for him next Friday.

Entertainment A Huge Success

St. Patrick's Day entertainment Friday evening was, as usual, a decided success. To George Walsh who managed the affair is due all the glory. As an organizer he has few equals.

Menlo Park Merchants Association

The Menlo Park Merchants' held a meeting in Kuck hall last Monday night. After the routine business the meeting adjourned and immediately reconvened when town politics were discussed at some length. Mayor Blake was present and delivered a very diplomatic speech in which he lauded the beauties of Menlo Park and its great future. The meeting unanimously endorsed the candidacy of Mayor Blake, W. H. Weeden and E. J. McLaughlin. Other endorsements will be made at the meeting to be held next Monday evening.

Citiens' Mass Meeting

It was hinted for some days that the citizens' mass meeting in the Kuck hall last Saturday night was to be an anti-administration gathering, that the record of the city fathers was to be discussed, and that an opposition ticket was to be indorsed that night. If this was the program it certainly went awry for the administration forces gathered early and captured the works by organizing the meeting and rushing through a resolution endorsing the administration. This done attempt was made to adjourn but this was checkmated by those who had come to witness some fireworks. Frank R. Cain was chosen chairman. After a brief but forcible address by him, W. E. Monroe was chosen secretary. The resolution commending the board was presented, when E. E. Quayle took the floor and in a well-phrased speech lauded the trustees for their honesty and integrity and asked that the resolution be adopted, and it was, without a dissenting voice.

Mayor Blake was suave in his remarks, saying that he might have made mistakes owing to his inexperience, but did what he thought was right and if elected would continue to give his best efforts to the people of Menlo Park. Councilman Harcom made a forcible speech, declaring that no one could point to one single instance where the board could be criticized in its labors for the best interests of the people of Menlo Park.

Other speakers were H. Love, J. H. O'Keefe, W. H. Weeden, W. E. Mornoe. The meeting was actually a lovefest instead of a bellicose affair, as some thought it would be.

Masonic Entertainment Tonight

The Menlo Park Masonic Temple Association will give an entertainment in the Masonic hall this evening. Fred C. Metcalf, master of the lodge, has announced that there will be moving pictures and a varied program of other entertainment which will be of interest to children as well as adults.

Candidates Set for Election

Tuesday was the last day to file nominations for city offices and during the closing hours there was a rush to file the papers. The following candidates have filed nominations for trustees: Dr. A. E. Blake, J. C. Brown, W. E. Dale, J. C. Ellis, J. J. Harcom, E. J. McLaughlin, Fred Nessler, Alexander Walker and W. H. Weeden. For city clerk, Mrs. F. I. Kurtz; for city treasurer, J. W. Ryan. Five out of the nine candidates for councilmen will be chosen to compose the new board of trustees. The new men seeking places on the board are W. E. Dale, F. Nessler, Alexander Walker and E. J. McLaughlin. Mr. Dale is the well-known grocer, who came within a few votes of securing a place on the board at the election last November. It is believed he will make the grade this time. W. H. Weeden is the building inspector for the city of Atherton. He is thoroughly familiar with the zoning laws, is a builder and contractor and would be a valuable man on the board. E. J. McLaughlin, the local shoe dealer, is a highly respected businessman, having the confidence of the people. H will make a good run. Aleaxnder Walker is a brick contractor, an upstanding man with plenty of backbone to stay with his convictions. He is a Scotchman and he facetiously announces to his many friends "that they must put Sandy on the board to save the money." Mrs. Kurtz is unopposed for city clerk, and J. W. Ryan has no opponent contending for treasurer.

It is said there will be much bitterness injected into the campaign. We wish to announce that there will be no mud slinging through the columns of this paper. All communications will be consigned to the waste basket. We propose to conduct a clean, fair and honest campaign, advocating only those we deem fitted for trustees.
